BALTIMORE.

Baltimore is the principal city south of Philadelphia. Its population, by the census of June 19th, 1888, was 416,805—64,509 being colored persons. These numbers are constantly increasing, and now reach over a half a million. The city was laid out in 1730; it is a port of entry and commercial centre, having regular lines of European and other foreign steamers, and any number of domestic lines.

Regular passenger trains arrive and depart daily, at one large Union Depot and five one-corporation depots. It is the centre of Maryland's extensive canning and tobacco trades, oysters, fisheries, shipbuilding, orchard products, &c. The 6,787 manufacturing establishments of the State ship their wares via Baltimore, which, from its situation on the Chesapeake Bay, is one of the best places for export and import, it being the nearest harbor city to the West.

Baltimore is called the Monumental City, and deserves as well to be named the City of Churches, of Homes, and, above all, of Handsome Women.

BAYSIDE RESORTS.

Two resorts are the most popular, and during the summer are visited by thousands. They are "Bay Ridge" and "Tolchester Beach," the former about thirty-two, the latter twenty-five miles from the city. Both have fine grounds, hotels, bath-houses, &c., and a beach nearly equal to the seacoast. Steamers run twice a day,

DRIVES.

Besides the lovely drives through Druid Hill Park, and thence to Green Spring Valley and Pimlico, there are many other fine roads: The Charles Street Avenue leading to Woodlawn Cemetery, Waverly and Towson; the Falls Road to Hampden, Lake Roland, etc.; the York, Harford, Belair, Philadelphia and North Point Roads; the old pike to Westminster; the Liberty Road; the Franklin Road through Calverton, Five Mills, Gwynn's Falls and Powhatan; Edmondson Avenue extended, crossing a bridge over Gwynn's Falls, to Catonsville; the Frederick pike passing the House of Refuge, Mount Olivet, Western and Loudon Park Cemeteries, Fairview, Paradise, Catonsville and Ellicott City.

MONUMENTS.

In the square just north of the Washington Monument is a fine statue of Chief Justice Roger Brooke Taney, Maryland's greatest and most celebrated jurist, copied from that by Rine in front of the State House at Annapolis. It was presented to the city by Wm. T. Walters, a merchant of Baltimore, and was unveiled about three years ago. It represents Taney attired in his robes of office seated and examining a piece of manuscript.

On Calvert street, fronting the Postoffice and north of Fayette, is the historic and justly renowned "Battle Monument," which appears in the official seal of the city of Baltimore. It was erected in 1815-25 in memory of the gallant defenders of the city who fell in the repulse of the British army of invasion under General Ross at North Point September 12th and 13th, 1814. The monument is of marble, and consists of a base, shaft and effigy. The shaft represents a fascies, bound with a fillet, upon which are inscribed the names of the thirty-nine heroes who fell at North Point. Surmounting the shaft is a female figure wearing a mural crown and holding in upraised hand a laurel wreath towards the battle field. The figure was executed by Capellano.

The Wells and McComas Monument in Ashland Square, at the junction of Aisquith, Gay and Monument streets, finished in 1873, commemorates the brave and patriotic self-sacrifice of Daniel Wells and Henry G. McComas, who are popularly supposed to have killed the English commanding officer, General Ross, at North Point, though now this is thought to be erroneous. It is certain, however, that both of the youths, neither of whom was twenty years of age, fired simultaneously at the time he fell, and they themselves were both killed immediately afterwards.

In Greenmount Cemetery is the monument erected to John McDonogh, the philanthropist, who left the bulk of his immense fortune to the cities of Baltimore and New Orleans for the education of indigent orphans.

Greenmount also contains the memorial monument of William B. Ferguson, founder of the Howard Society, who died at Norfolk, Va., of yellow fever during the epidemic of 1855, while heroically ministering to the plague-stricken inhabitants.

On North Broadway stands a tall shaft in a commanding position, seen from all parts of the adjacent country, erected in 1865 in memory of Thomas Wilkey, founder of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows in the United States. It is fifty-two feet high and surmounted by a life-size figure of Charity protecting orphans.

In the graveyard of the old Westminster Presbyterian Church, on the southeast corner of Greene and Fayette streets, is the marble pedestal covered with a cap resting on a granite base over the grave of the poet, Edgar Allan Poe, whose ill-starred life and melancholy genius are well known to all lovers of literature. On the pedestal is a medallion portrait of Poe by Valek.

For description of Washington Monument see illustration.

MOUNTAIN RESORTS.

"Pen-Mar," on the Western Maryland Railroad, the most beautiful spot of the Blue Ridge Mountains, has a national reputation for scenery, pure air, &c. It is seventy miles from the city.

Monterey Springs is a little nearer to the city, in Franklin county, Pa., and is visited in summer by crowds seeking pure air and water and rest.

Chattolancee Springs Hotel, Green Spring Valley, Baltimore County, is noted for its magnificent water, which, according to analysis, surpasses the Poland Springs of Maine. Cures all liver, kidney and stomach troubles. It purifies and cleanses the system. W. L. Stork, proprietor,

THE WASHINGTON MONUMENT.

This Monument is located on an eminence at the junction of Charles and Monument Sts., 100 feet above tide. From the middle of this rises the column, and handsomely decorated greens and walks extend for a square on four sides. This locality is named Mount Vernon Place, after Washington's Homestead.

The Monument is of white marble. Its base is 60 feet square and 35 feet high; from this base rises a Doric column (20 feet in diameter at the base and 15 feet at the top) to a height of 165 feet above ground. Upon the capital of this column is a gallery, and above that a colossal statue of Washington, representing him in the act of resigning his commission as General-in-

Chief of the United States Armies. It is a work of great merit, by the sculptor Gregory. Robert Mills was the architect of this chaste and symmetrical structure.

The total height of the Monument to the head of the statue is 180 feet above ground, and 280 feet above tide. It is ascended on the inside by a circular stairway of 220 steps; a lantern being used to light the way. Visitors are admitted to the top on payment of a small charge.

PARKS.

The public parks of Baltimore are numerous, spacious and well kept. The largest is Druid Hill Park, in the western section, which contains about 700 acres of timbered land and beautiful lawns laid out with stone walks and graveled roadways. An immense reservoir in the Park contributes a portion of the city's water supply. A boat lake, skating pond, base ball and tennis grounds are also contained in the mammoth inclosure. The ground consists of alternate swells and depressions, and the park, in winter or summer, possesses extreme rural beauty. Valuable zoological and ornithological collections form an attractive and interesting feature. At the eastern city limits is Patterson Park, containing 113½ acres, and Federal Hill and Riverside Parks are in South Baltimore. Johnson, Lafayette, Harlem, Madison, Franklin and other squares are scattered over the city. All of them are shaded by ornamental, evergreen and deciduous trees and provided with pretty walks and seats. The parks are mainly kept in order by taxes on the street railroads.

POSTOFFICE AND U. S. COURT HOUSE.

This magnificent building fronts on Calvert and extends from Fayette to Lexington street, and is to have a fine lawn in the rear, between it and North street. It is five stories high, of symmetrical shape and proportions, has eight towers and is built of an excellent quality of granite. The corridors are finished in black marble and the rooms and offices in hard woods. It is an imposing structure of great architectural beauty, and cost about $3,000,000.

THE ENOCH PRATT FREE LIBRARY.

Mr. Enoch Pratt, a merchant of Baltimore, in 1882, gave to the city nearly a million of dollars, on conditions which were subsequently complied with, to secure an annuity for the maintenance of a Free Library. The necessary legislation, as well as the vote of the citizens of Baltimore, ratified the designs of the founder. He built a marble home for the Library on Mulberry, near Cathedral street, 81 by 140 feet, intended to be thoroughly fire-proof. The style of architecture is Romanesque. A tower 98 feet high rises from the centre of the facade. The front is lighted by large windows and ornamented with allegorical sculpture. The building has room for 200,000 books and 250 readers at a time,

PEABODY INSTITUTE.

This elegant and palatial marble building, the corner of which, fronting on Charles and Monument streets, is shown in the above illustration, was the munificent gift of George Peabody to the city of his early struggles and business successes. The building contains a large and valuable library of over 100,000 rare and choice books, having room for 500,000; and a fine art gallery of select paintings and classic and modern statuary. Both are free and accessible to the public—the Library from 9 A. M. to 9 P. M., and the Art Gallery from 10 A. M. to 4 P. M., every day except Sundays and legal holidays. This is not a circulating library like the Enoch Pratt, but one of reference. The books are not allowed to be taken away from the building, but can be used or read in the reading room attached to the Library. In addition to a large Lecture Hall, it has also a Conservatory of Music of world-wide reputation and fame, in which a high order of music is taught and fostered. The most celebrated professors and highest musical talent are engaged, and the concerts given in the hall are as finished and refined as they are classic and recherche. A very moderate tuition fee is charged, but the pupils, when sufficiently advanced, are permitted and encouraged to participate in the concerts and receive compensation in accordance with their talents and proficiency. The sessions are from the first of October until June. All the departments of the Institute are generously endowed,

JOHNS HOPKINS HOSPITAL.—The Johns Hopkins Hospital of Baltimore was formally opened Tuesday, May 7, 1889, with addresses by Governor Jackson, of Maryland; President Francis T. King, of the Board of Trustees; President Daniel C. Gilman, of the Johns Hopkins University, and Dr. John S. Billings. The institution, which occupies the plat of four blocks bounded by Broadway, Monument, Jefferson and Wolfe streets, having a frontage on Broadway of 709 feet and extending back 856 feet, embraces fourteen distinct yet connected buildings—the administration building, apothecary's building, male pay ward, female pay ward, the nurses' home, kitchen, bath-house, octagon ward, common ward, isolating ward, amphitheatre, dispensary, pathological building and laundry. The hospital, besides furnishing shelter, food, drugs, and medical and surgical treatment for the sick, also will provide instruction and furnish exceptional advantages for original investigation into the causes and treatment of disease.

THE STREETS.

The streets of Baltimore generally run at right angles, so that strangers find but little difficulty in making their way about the city, and their cleanliness and regularity elicit the praise of all visitors. In the northern and northwestern part of the city, and other sections known as the residence portions, the dwellings are of handsome design, elegant in appearance, roomy, well lighted and ventilated. Lines of street cars furnish quick and ready transportation to the business centres, and the cheap cab system renders locomotion easy, convenient and expeditious. Rents are reasonable, and persons of moderate means find Baltimore unsurpassed in facilities for securing good homes with all the modern conveniences in respectable and desirable neighborhoods.

The ALBION Hotel,

READ AND CATHEDRAL STREETS,

BALTIMORE.

Two Squares from the Washington Monument.

European Plan.
Appointments First Class.

Single Rooms or En Suite.
Cafe Unsurpassed.

GEO. F. ADAMS, Manager.

SITUATED in the most fashionable quarter of the city, The Albion is especially adapted for families desiring an extended residence, or parties traveling for pleasure, as will be seen from the fact that it is only two blocks from the Washington Monument, the Peabody Institute, the Walters' Art Gallery, the Baltimore and University Clubs; three blocks from the Enoch Pratt Free Library, the Roman Catholic Cathedral, the Residence of his Eminence, Cardinal Gibbons; four blocks from the Maryland and Athenaeum Clubs; five blocks from the Lyceum Theatre and Academy of Music, the Johns Hopkins University, the Baltimore City College.

Cars within one block pass directly by Ford's and Holliday Street Theatres, the Baltimore and Ohio and Union Depots, Druid Hill and Patterson Parks, City Hall, Post Office, United States and City Courts, and Johns Hopkins Hospital.

Special Rates will be made to persons or families desiring apartments for permanent residence.

FORT McHENRY.

This renowned and historic fort is located on Locust Point, a narrow strip of land in Southeast Baltimore, at the entrance of the inner harbor. It has become famous and classic on account of its bombardment and successful repulse of the British fleet, September 13th, 1814. The "Star-Spangled Banner" still flies from the apex of its flag staff, the place of its song conception and birth.

MARINE OBSERVATORY.

The Marine Observatory in Federal Hill Park has been in existence for nearly a century. It was originated by Captain Porter, ancestor of the present admiral of that name, and, until recently, was the only means of reporting steamers and vessels coming from sea as well as those running on the Chesapeake bay. When Federal Hill was converted into a public park, the present fine structure was built by the park commissioners to be used as an observatory, and Mr. M. L. Dudley was placed in charge, where he has remained for many years.

There is also a monument in Federal Hill Park in memory of Colonel George Armistead, who commanded Fort McHenry during the memorable bombardment, September 13th, 1814, when Francis Scott Key, seeing the flag of his country still floating over its battlements in the early dawn, felt such a patriotic inspiration, though still a prisoner on the British man of war, that he penned the immortal "Star-Spangled Banner," now our national hymn.
